So yeah, if you say you care so much, then why didn't you show up?

Makes no sense to me, and pisses me off. If you really cared, you would have been there, instead of partying.

Some people are so fucking full of shit they drive me fucking crazy!!

argh!!

I'm sorry babe. Some guys just seem to be born assholes and don't have a clue about growing out of it.

There are days that some men honestly make me ashamed to be a man. Oh well.
Their fuck up. They'll get theres.

i completely understand you sex kitten. right now mine is, "if you actually care and say that you want to stay and help me out, then why the fuck aren't you ever around. staying out until 8:30 in the morning and then sleeping thru out plans isn't helping me any." ugh.

this is one of the reasons why i have stopped dating and have no interest in starting any time soon.

I wasn't talking about people sucking face, frankly I couldn't care about that.

I was referring more to a legal obligation someone had about a little boy.

As it allways is, there are two sides to an argument. And the truth is somewhere in the middle.

a: I delayed him getting moving in the morning because he wanted someone else there with him "just in case".

b: the guard at the 1st floor is a moron. misdirected us and caused us another 15 minute delay.

c: Shit happens, and you get delayed, eg FINDING the building.

So, I would appreciate it if you didn't make it sound like he doesn't give a shit. He does. Far more than you know. Or aprantly want to admit to anyone.

If you cared to ask, you would know that he's agonizing over making damn sure the little guy has food, supplies, etc. Setting his dreams aside to find a full time job to pay for this.

steps off soapbox

That is all. You may now return to your normal diet of church drama, for I have work to do.

Yeah, I heard all of that.

Funny tho, the judge didn't see me until almost 9:30. Must have been a long delay.

And I'm not that much of a bitch. Even if it was defaulted, I did exactly what I told him I was going to do. I got joint custody.

Odd that you, yourself told me you didn't like James, and now you are friends with him? I guess people are entitled to change their minds. Not that I care to much, I just think it's odd, that you talk to me like you are my friend.

Although I'm sure now, that you just do that, so you can get all the needed information from me for him.

Not that I care to much, I just think it's odd, that you talk to me like you are my friend. Although I'm sure now, that you just do that, so you can get all the needed information from me for him.

First off, I don't hate you. Nor dislike you. I never said you were a bitch, just that you were misrepresenting things either consciously or subconsciously.

Second, people change. First impressions aren't allways correct. I have the ability of making a correction in my treatment and valuation of people based on long term exposure instead of holding things against them that were misinterpreted.

Third, either your watch is off, or you are mis-remembering the times. We were in the room for 15 minutes before he could talk to the judge at 9:30. And had spent 5 minutes scanning the ledgers in the hall to figure out which room to go in before that. Another 30 minutes in the lobby going through security. Twice. So, we arrived at 8:45. Never saw you. Was looking for you. Now, the conflicting times quoted means that someone isn't right about the time. And there are two of us remembering the same times from checking separate watches/cell phones.

Anyways, the only thing i've taken offense to is how you are badmouthing him in ways that I KNOW to not be true. I know you two don't get along anymore and i'm not asking you to. I'm just asking that you tell the facts straight, or keep the battle private instead of in a public forum, as he is doing.

This is the advice of a friend. Not an enemy. We all make mistakes. It's just a matter of taking the opportunity to correct them that makes anyone a better person.

I don't think I have anything to correct. I'm sure I can get a copy of the court report to see what the time was exactly that I was talking to the judge. James name was called in the hall three times before we proceeded. That's standard for all district court appearances. I happen to be taking care of my responsibilities.

calling three times is generous...

hell...

I was 20 minutes late to court one time, was following the damned deputy back into the building, she went into the back office, the judge signed the goddamned warrant with me standing right there in the courtroom...

bastards...

no we were standing in front of the stand, i got sworn in.. the deputy went out there, she asked if he was there, deputy said no, she said

"let it be known, that so and so was called 3 times in the hall and didn't show, let us proceed"
